	Subtitle: Social Media and Conflict NOTE: This course explores the dynamic interaction between social media and conflict. It looks at both the good and the bad of social media relative to conflict and conflict resolution. It exposes social media both as a weapon of conflict and a tool for conflict resolution. For the most part, students will explore the different ways that social media can be utilized as a tool for fostering peace, promoting good governance, preventing, managing, and resolving conflict. Arguably, the original idea of the social media was to offer cyber platform for social networking. Myspace, Facebook, Tweeter, Instagram, LinkedIn, Snapchat, WhatsApp, and countless

NOTE: This course explores the controversial subjects of guns, gun control, gun rights, and 2nd Amendment. It approaches these subjects primarily from a conflict perspective, as it examines the contested discourses in the philosophical, constitutional, historical, political, cultural, social, moral, and policy basis of guns in America. With over 300,000,000 guns in the hands and homes of private Americans, there can be no doubt that guns are an important part of the American society and culture. And with a constitutional amendment, however controversially understood and interpreted, ownership, possession, regulation, and use of guns have become matters of intense debates and conflict - touching on critical areas of rights, freedom, liberties, identity, culture, crime, violence, public health, personal safety, school safety, sport, and leisure.
